

Innovative Paint Performance with Expancel® XS200 Microspheres

Discover the latest innovation in microspheres for paint and coating applications with the introduction of the ultra-small Expancel® XS200 microspheres. Designed specifically for use in thinner layers, such as interior paints, this new product offers a significant reduction in paint weight without compromising the essential properties of the paint or coating layer. This advancement not only enhances the efficiency and performance of paint applications but also aligns with the industry's growing focus on sustainability and resource conservation.

Join our product presentation to explore the benefits and potential applications in paint and coating solutions.
